ENTERTAIN PARTIES AT MANY COUNTRY HOUSES

Numerous Pleasant Events Being Planned for Society Folk During Summer

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick William Scott and their children left town yesterday to spend the summer months at their country estate, "Royal Orchard," near Afton. Numerous country places are being opened up all over the State, and many pleasant house-parties will be entertained throughout the summer.

Mrs. William F. Massie and her daughter, Miss Ella Williams Buck, are at "Rose Hill," their home near Greenwood, and have as their guest, Miss Mary Randolph, of Richmond.

Worth-Coke. Society throughout this State and Maryland is deeply interested in the marriage of Miss Sallie Anne Wardlaw "Coke," daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Beale Coke, to Matthew Fontaine Maury Werth, son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Werth, of this city, which will be celebrated this evening at 6:30 o'clock in St. Thomas Church, at Garrison Forest, Md. A brilliant company of distinguished guests will witness the ceremony and attend the reception afterward at "Lay's Park," the country place of the bride's parents. The wedding unites two families that have been prominent in social and political life of this country since before the Revolution.

Pretty Home Wedding. Quantities of palms, ferns and potted plants, with lighted candles and roses, formed an effective background for the wedding of Miss Nellie May Clary and William Henry Harris, which was celebrated yesterday morning at 11 o'clock at the home of the bride, 116 West Clay Street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John L. Bray, pastor of the Clay Street Methodist Episcopal Church. Miss Florence Badcock played Mendelssohn's Wedding March as a wedding song. William Lyman was master of ceremonies.

The bride entered from the rear of the parlors with her sister, Miss Annie Clary, and wore a modish tailored dress of green, with a corsage bouquet of lilies of the valley. Her hat of leghorn straw was a Watteau shape, lined with palest pink chiffon, and trimmed in silk roses to match. Miss Clary wore a lovely gown of white tulle, draped over white messaline. The maid of honor, Miss May Jones, was dressed in white tulle, decorated with lace and pearls, and her bouquet was of pink roses. John Shirley Murphy attended the groom as his best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris left on the noon train for a honeymoon that will include Washington, Baltimore and other Northern points. They will be at home on their return at 290 North Twenty-eighth Street, Richmond. Mrs. Harris traveled in a green costume with a hat to match.

Wedding at Hill. A beautiful June wedding took place yesterday at "Elk Hill," the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Stokes, on the James River in Gloucester County, when their daughter, Miss Millie Cooke Green, of Denver, Colo., was married to Dr. Jere Lawrence Crook, of Jackson, Tenn. The bride is a native Virginian, though she grew up in the adopted State of Colorado, of her uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. William West Grant. Dr. Crook's ancestors on one side are also Virginians. He is a physician and surgeon among the younger men of his State.

At the opening chords of the Lohengrin "Wedding March" at high noon the entrance doors of the porch to the long, broad hall were opened by Little Raleigh Travers Green, a young cousin of the bride. Little Anne Macdonald Green, with Little Thomas Stokes, entered holding the ribbons to mark the aisle for the bridal party through the hall and into the spacious drawing-room. In front of the white marble mantlepiece, on a background of ferns and ascension lilies, the marriage ceremony took place in the presence of only relatives and intimate friends. Rev. David H. Lewis, assistant rector of Grace Episcopal Church in this city, officiated. Miss Lucy Williams Green was her sister's maid of honor, and only attendant. She wore a crown of white tulle with a girle of blue satin and a garden hat of leghorn, trimmed in pink roses. She carried an armful of Killarney roses.

Following the maid of honor and preceding the bride came the little four-year-old James Green Stokes, who carried the wedding ring in a flower basket of white field daisies. The bride was given away by her uncle, Dr. William West Grant, of Denver, with whom she descended the stairs. They were met at the improvised altar by the bridegroom and his best man, William De Barry Nelson, of Jackson, Tenn. Her wedding dress was a beautiful affair of ivory satin made with a long train, and the drapery was of light blue. The bodice was embroidered in pearls and finches with real lace, and her long tulle veil fell from a cap of lace caught with orange blossoms. She wore a short tulle veil over her face and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley.

During the ceremony soft music from stringed instruments filled the rooms of the old house, recalling other wedding days at this historic place. A reception was held and a wedding breakfast served immediately following the ceremony, and Dr. and Mrs. Crook left later in the afternoon for an extended wedding journey. A party of guests, including the bride and groom, relatives and a few intimate friends were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Stokes for several days preceding the marriage.

Landers-Adams. Dr. and Mrs. Crook will be at home after September 1 at Jackson, Tenn. Landers-Adams. A quiet but pretty wedding was celebrated on Tuesday morning at 9:30 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Broadus Adams, when their daughter, Grace, became the bride of Douglas A. Landers, formerly of Mineola, Texas. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. P. Hicks, brother-in-law of the bride. She was becomingly gowned in a blue traveling suit with hat and gloves to match.

J. B. Landers and Miss Flossie Landers of Mineola, Texas, father and sister of the groom, were among the out-of-town guests present at the ceremony, and following an extended southern trip to Texas and other points of interest, Mr. and Mrs. Landers will be at home at 2706 Semmes Avenue, Woodland Heights.

The Sanctuary Society of St. Benedictine Parish will give a lawn party this evening from 8 to 12 o'clock on the college grounds. It will be a very attractive affair, and for the benefit of the chapel.

Southern Erecting Structure on East Side of Seventh Street Viaduct.

BON AIR THREATENED BY FIRE. Engine Crew and Villagers Check Flames by Back-Firing—First Concert of Summer in Washington Square To-Night.

A temporary bridge is being constructed by the Southern Railway on the eastern side of the Seventh Street viaduct at the southern end of the Forest Hill bridge, and it will be used by the Forest Hill cars until the widening of the arch is completed. Almost a new structure will be erected, but it will be 100 feet wider than the former, being on a level with the street, which was recently widened by the city.

The improvement is one that is much needed, and has been long delayed, owing to the inactivity of the city and the railway company to reach an agreement. Congestion among the constantly increasing stream of teams, pedestrians and trolley cars over the bridge will be greatly relieved. The tunnel underneath will be large enough for four tracks.
